Berry Wall In Wall Street. Not much has been heard of Berry Wall of late, but he is very much in evie in Wall street, where his talents, which are of no mean order, are being ruided in one of the largest brokerage houses. He still displays his old charm of dress, although his waistcoats are not so stunning as they used to be, and he only changes his clothes once a day now.

only changes his clothes once a day now.

He is really very well informed in industrial securities, and one morning lately he sent a group of brokers into ons of laughter when he was appealed to by an operator to go into a lit-tle speculation in one of those stocks. Wall straightened up, looked ternly at the man who dared make this proposition and then said, "I have been sweetened with Sugar, I have been stupefied with Gas, a few weeks ago I was strangled with Cordage, and I have been paralyzed with Whisky, and if you suppose there is anything left of me for fur-ther experience of this sort you know me better than I do myself."

And there was quite as much of truth as there was of sarcastic humor in this comment, and the experience has not been peculiarly that of Berry Wall. Some of the brokers think that the time is coming when the famous deposed king of the dudes will cause quite as much comment upon the street as he did in the old days upon the avenue.—Cor. Philadelphia Press.

Saving For the Government. The fervor of economy which recently agitated congress recalls an incident of the government printing office which oc-curred during the Rounds administration. A chief of a division in that big workshop had had a good deal of difficulty in getting requisitions for supplies filled. The amount of lead pencils he had called for had been criticised as excessive, and he put his wits to work to devise ways and means to avoid clerks carrying away those useful articles. He made a rule that a clerk should be issued but one pencil at a time and that he should return the stump of his old pencil upon receiving a new one. This process was continued during a couple of

It never seemed to occur to the chief that a clerk could gather in stumps of pencils from his friends, if he were in-clined to cheat the office, and the method was regarded by its promoter as an evidence of the massiveness of his brain. Finally, when his successor was appointed, among the effects of the office turned over to him were two good sized boxes of stumps of pencils, each stump averaging less than an inch in length. The curious collection took up a good deal of room, and the new chief lost but little time in sending it out of the office and in taking away the economical safe-guard.—Exchange.

The judge of the Dettmold court of justice had before him the other day the case of Moses Lipper of Blomberg on a charge of usury. Lipper had in one case for the use of 200 marks charged the borrower 12 marks interest, and for a further indulgence of three months 20

In another case Lipper, for a loan of 1,500 marks, had charged 945 marks for interest. A cow which Moses Lipper had sold for 180 marks, but which turned bought back for 100 marks. This cow proved a profitable investment for Lipper. The animal changed hands again, and for payment a bill was tendered and accepted. For prolonging this bill five days a sum of 650 marks was charged. and for 25 days longer the sum of 760 marks was deemed necessary for the con-

In another case Lipper had, according to the statement of his son, turned a bill of 10 thalers, by the addition of a cipher. into 100 thalers, and again another bill was transformed from 100 thalers into a debt of 1,000 thalers. The judge sentenced the defendant to one year's imprisonment, 3,000 marks fine and two years' loss of "civil rights."—Saale Zei-

We do not see the need of giving the title of "embassador" to any of our min-isters to foreign countries. They can all do their business, in obediance to orders, under the title of minister as well as unler any other title. There is less fustian in the politics and diplomacy of our times than there was in the times of our respected progenitors. Truly embassador to the court of St. James has a higher sound than minister to England, but it is less descriptive. An embassador, according to modern usage, is the personal representative of his sovereign at the court of another sovereign. Our minister to England has no business dealings with the sovereign or at court; his proper business is at the foreign office. Guess it is likely that the title of minister will serve all useful purposes, and it is orna-mental enough. Besides, an embassa-dor would want to get a bigger salary than a minister gets. That is a serious thought for us.—New York Sun.

Death of a Noted Bohemian Oats Man. Jay M. Orcutt, the widely known Michigan Bohemian oats schemer, is dead. Orcutt operated in the country from 1883 to 1885. The scheme was to sell 50 bush-els of seed oats to 15 farmers in each township at $10 a bushel, taking one year 7 per cent notes in payment, the sellers bonding themselves to sell double that quantity from their crops at the same figures, keeping 25 per cent. It is estimated that the Bohemian oat scheme netted $100,000 profit, Orcutt's share be-ing about $25,000. He was extravagant nd spent his money as fast as received. -Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Hard Winter For Adirondack Deer. Those who have recently visited the Adirondacks say the past winter has been a severe one for deer, owing to the heavy falls of snow, and that many have died in consequence. A geutleman who came from Harrisville on the railroad says he saw a large buck lying exhausted in the deep snow beside the railroad track. Deer are reported as in very poor flesh. —Utica Herald and Gazette.

A Man Who tould Keep His Temper.

'A man may be pretty smart in a great any things, but it isn't everybody that nows how to hold his temper," remarked Marke Warren of New Orleans at the Lindell yesterday. "I saw a very odd case down in Mississippi last week. It was in a railroad restaurant. A young lawyer, a mammoth fellow physically, had some words with a colored waiter. The negro was very abusive, and at one stage of the quarrel pulled a gun. all thought that that meant death for one or the other of them, but no: the lawyer did not seem a bit worried, and some bystanders took the gun from the waiter. The latter then followed the young fellow out to the platform and renewed his abuse and demands for satisfaction. The rest of us were dumfounded at the action of the lawyer. He was evidently no coward, and it was just as evident that he was more than a match for the waiter.

"Finally the negro struck at him, merely knocking his hat off. Then some one hustled him away. After he was gone somebody spoke to the young fel-low about it, and he said it would be poor policy for him to disgrace his family by becoming a murderer, and that it would be just as disgraceful for him to engage in a fist fight. Another thing, it would do that waiter good to be taught a lesson, and on his return he would have him arrested and sent to prison for a year or so. That man knew how to keep his temper, and I guess, after all, he took the right view of the matter."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Monkeys That Enjoy a Joke.

In a large cage in the Philadelphia zoo were kept at one time about 20 monkeys. Among them were two big, wise looking apes with gray beards and hair, and with the mien of stoics. They had very long, straight tails, and a habit of sitting high up from the ground and allowing their tails to hang at full length. In the same cage were three or four brown cebus monkeys, who were much devoted to exercise and fan.

While the big monkeys would cling to the side of the cage or sit on a perch some 10 or 12 feet from the ground one of the little brown monkeys would stealthily creep up to one of them and suddenly grasp the end of the long tail and swing with all its might. Of course the "big un" could not lift his tail be cause of the weight of the little monkey clinging to it. He could only climb down the side of the cage with his burden un til he could reach the floor. During this operation the brown monkey kept swinging until his own tail touched the floor, at which instant he would release his hold and spring to the top of the cage, followed by the outraged monkey amid the screams of the others. By the time he had reached a point where he could attack his little tormentor, who would show some signs of resistance and cause him to pause for a moment, another brown monkey would seize his long tail and take a swing. -R. S. Garner in New Review.

The Lawyer Has the Deed.

A young lawyer in the city had as a client some time ago a negro charged with assault and battery, and the accused now owes his liberty to the fine work done in his behalf by his counsel, who put up the plea of insanity as his defense and was sustained by the jury. It was a hard fight. The fee was a good one, but the negro had no cash. In lieu thereof he deeded a building lot in the suburbs to his lawyer, who accepted the deed, duly signed and delivered, and

A short time ago he bethought him that with the help of a building and loan association he might put a house on that lot and increase its value, so he offered the property for a loan to one of the home building and loan associations. His application was duly received, but when he went around to hear the result the secretary told him that the committee had rejected the application. The astonished lawyer asked the reason; the lot was good, the loan small and title good, for he had examined into that part of it. The secretary said that the committee differed with the lawyer as to the title, because while they themselves were not lawyers they failed to see how a negro who had been releas by a jury on a plea of insanity could give a good title to property. The young lawyer still has the deed.—Macon Telegraph.

A Superstitions Actress.

Eleanora Duse is absurdly superstitious and in the most unexpected ways. A stage carpenter at the Fifth Avenue theater relates this incident. Just before an evening performance he completed some bit of work and threw him self down to rest for a moment upon one of the stage properties, a couch made of soap boxes and covered with a buffalo

Immediately all of Duse's support flew at him, chattering in wild excitement and unintelligible Italian. Finally the stage manager spied him and pounced

"You must get off from that," said. "If Signora Duse saw you, she wouldn't let the curtain go up. She thinks it's a bad omen to have any one except herself rest upon that seat,"— New York Times.

An Epitaph. A tombstone in a country churchyard bears the inscription, "She was so pleasant." After all, could it have been more fully or better said? The stranger as well as the intimate knows that the dead woman was one who brought cheer with her wherever she came and brightened the joyless day with her sunny presence. One may not sigh if fame, riches, attainments are missed if "so pleasant" is said of us by and by.—New York Times.

A servant girl was once given some macaroni by her mistress to prepare for the table. Noticing the girl's surprise the lady asked:

"Didn't you cook macaroni at your iast place?"
"Cook it? We used them things to light the fire with?"—Exchange.
